A "MILK" MATCH.

A Game the Colored Clubs Can Discount.
The Stars and Waverley played a game of ball on the National grounds yesterday afternoon, at least the Stars played, and all that the other club did was assist them to get as many runs as they could. After they had helped the Stars to fifteen runs, they returned the favor by giving them four; the game then closed.

Umpire—Mr. Kipp.

The management of the games on the National grounds have wisely concluded to let the colored league continue to play its game without further interruption, and that idea to tread in upon them with games by white clubs, more especially when the games are such a miserable exhibition as that of yesterday. The colored league has been playing of that kind and not half try. Those not believing it, go out to the grounds at 4:30 o'clock to see the Douglas and Eagle clubs play and satisfy themselves of the truth of the assertion.

Arrowhead. The high reputation of Equal division in its management of its excursion, an elegant steamer, a beautiful moonlight night, good music, and a good company without the annoyance of intoxicated persons, give assurance to all who accompany them of a jolly good time. Parties who desire to "trip the light fantastic toe" can remain at Glym-ton until the return of the boat from his trip down the river.

Julius Lamsburg, the popular Carpet Furnisher, from his new store, 315 Seventh street, asserts that no one will outdo him.

AFTER THE SIEGE.

Mrs. Brown and Her Nieces in the Police Court.

Mrs. Lockwood Glories in Their Spunk—The Valor and Devotion of an Old Colored Servant—Other Facts About the Case.

The police court-room was thronged with an anxious, expectant audience yesterday morning, desirous of seeing the ladies who had so gallantly defended their castle on Capitol hill the preceding day. The details of the case appeared in THE NATIONAL REPUBLICAN yesterday. Every time the name of a dress was heard every head in the room was turned and necks craned in anticipation of the arrival of the gallant garrison. The usual routine cases on the District side had been disposed of when Mr. Charles Pelham, one of the counsel for the defendants, appeared in court, held a whispered conversation of a few minutes with Judge Spill and quickly retired. It was stated that he had gone after his clients, who had decided to waive an examination in the police court and allow their case to be sent to the grand jury for action. After a few minutes' delay the garrison, headed by the commander-in-chief, Miss Wealthy Hamilton, marched into court. Close behind her, in Indian file, were Mrs. Adelaide Brown, mistress of the besieged castle, Miss Lizette Hamilton, a daughter of Mrs. Brown, while the rear was brought up by counsel and bondsmen. Captain Pelham, clerk of the court, read the warrants in the case charging Miss Wealthy Hamilton and Lizette Hamilton with assaulting one Simon Joseph with intent to kill, while Mrs. Adelaide Brown was charged with a simple assault. The ladies did not appear at all disconcerted at the senation created by them, but in their seats inside the bar and announced that they wished to waive an examination. Counsel on both sides and the court consulted together for a short time, as a result of which His Honor announced that he would sit in the case of the Misses Hamilton at 5:00 o'clock and $100 for Mrs. Brown. Mr. J. H. Buscher came forward and stated that he desired to become their surety, and after the usual forms had been complied with, the gallant garrison marched out of court exulting in the most unconcerned manner imaginable. The curious fellow followed, and the last seen of the parties were in the way that the counsel's office under an admiring escort, who were lavish in praise of their gallant conduct in raising a siege.

The account of the sturdy defense of Mrs.
Brown's castle, published yesterday, created quite a sensation in town and elicited expressions of admiration for the spunk of the little band of women from all quarters. The Misses Hamilton expressed regret that the reports of the press placed them apparently in the character of Amazons. They state that the property was sold illegally after sundown and no other bidder than the holder of the deed of trust present. It was the intention of Mr. Hamilton to contest the sale, and the necessary steps had been taken to bring the case into court as soon as Judge Huger returns and the court opens on the first Monday in September. They charge that the parties claiming to have bought the place knew this and made extraordinary and unwarranted efforts to obtain possession of the place to strengthen their claim when the case got into the courts.

They also assert that the officers were grossly mistaken and abusive, telling them to "go home with their empty pistols," that they would then hand and foot and drag them to the police station, and taunting them upon a prospective ride in the jail car.

An old colored servant who had lived with Mrs. Brown for many years, and who had acted as aide de camp in calling up the reinforcements when she found things getting hot and an engagement likely to take place, began to be furnished with a pistol and placed on the skirmish line, remarking that she was old and it would be but little consequence if she was killed, while it would be too bad to have Mrs.
Brown or the girls hurt.

Mrs. Delva Lockwood on reading the account of the affair in THE NATIONAL REPUB-LICAN, at once addressed a note to the Misses Hamilton congratulating them on their courageous defense of the castle, and tendering her services in their defense free of cost.

It appears that the services of Constable Joseph, who took possession of the house, were secured after another constable, Mr.
Curtin, had tried and failed. Curtin, it is stated, went to the house some days ago to serve a writ, and as the paper was defective was obliged to return to have it amended. When this was accomplished, he again appeared at the house, but was told that he was not wanted, as the house was not his. He then made an attempt to take possession, and he prudently concluded that discretion was the better part of valor and left. Joseph, it is stated, is to be served, on account of the obstinacy with which he presses the proceedings.

DEMOCRATIC DELIBERATIONS.

The Central Committee Preparing for the Ratification Meeting.

The Democratic central committee held its regular meeting last night at its headquarters in Vernon row, William Dickson in the chair, Lawrence Gardner secretary. The committee on railroad transportation met for further time to make its report. The chairman stated incidentally that the Virginia Midland between Washington and Gordonsville will run a special train on the reduced rates for the accommodation of people between these points who desire to come in to the Hancock ratification meeting. The chair also stated that the committee had been in touch with the Columbia Democratic club by which in the future that club would occupy the central committee rooms as a joint tenant, paying half the expense. The central committee ratified the agreement.

The central committee then adjourned to meet immediately after a conference with the finance committee, which was then organized.

The official financial committee was continued as officers of the conference meeting. The chair stated that the object of the conference was to consider the question of funds, etc., about the ratification.

Captain Goldard of the finance committee said they had no regular report to make. They had had several meetings, but no report. There were suggestions were made. None had been acted upon except that one of consulting with the central committee as to the best method of raising funds. There was no difficulty about the matter. Plenty of money was ready for the occasion.

Dr. Allen moved that the finance committee of fifteen be discharged from further consideration of the financial question, and that the finance committee appointed by the central committee to continue supervising the subject of finance. Mr. Moore raised the point of order that the central committee had no authority to discharge a committee appointed by the representatives of the various clubs. The chair held that that point had been considered and that the committee was to continue in the affirmative. Captain Goldard opposed Dr. Allen's motion on the ground that the clubs had not requested the discharge of their representatives, and that to do so would be to invite them to an animated discussion arose, participated in by Dr. Allen, Mr. Moore, Captain Goldard, Judge Cassin, Mr. Ball and others.

The order of the day was then explained the constitution of the various organizations having to do with this subject.

Mr. Gardner said there was no doubt that the finance committee had no right to discharge the finance committee. There was no question of taxing the club, because they were to pay their own expenses and the central committee therefore. He therefore offered a resolution that the finance committee be continued.

W. H. Giegist made a humorous and old-fashioned demand for the ratification of the enthusiasm of the meeting. He moved that all the motions hitherto made on the subject be laid on the table. This motion was not entertained and a vote was taken on Mr. Gardner's resolution, resulting in its passage. Judge Cassin moved a reconsideration of the vote. Mr.
Yates moved that the meeting adjourn.

The chair did not observe strict parliamentary usage, holding that it was desirable to obtain a free and full interchange of views, as the meeting was one of consultation. The discussion was finally quieted by the authorization of the committee to move on to the next right—was, in fact, substantially raised.

There being no further business before it the consultation meeting then adjourned. The central committee then reassembled. None of the sub-committees have official reports.

It was, however, announced that the decorations to be obtained were of a very handsome character, the fireworks very gorgeous, and that the parade band was engaged. The sub-committees were directed to report on Friday night to the finance committee, at that time giving a detailed statement of the expenses to be incurred in connection with the ratification meeting.

A meeting of the Young Men's Hancock and English club was held at Shea's hall last evening. Mr. C. C. Carrington in the chair, and Mr.
J. A. Richardson in the chair. The speakers were Mr. Smith, L. Fitzhugh and J. B. Burgess were proposed and elected members of the club.
Shea's hall was selected as the regular meeting place of the club. A resolution was passed appropriating $50 toward defraying the expenses of the ratification meeting the 29th instant, but no action was taken, as the treasurer stated that the finances were not in account of the fact that the club had not yet moved that 100 torches be purchased at a cost not to exceed $12. Carried. A general skirmish for funds was then inaugurated and announcement is to be served, on account of the obstinacy with which he presses the proceedings.

FRUITS AND FLOWERS.

Monthly Excursion of the Potomac Fruit-Growers.

Yesterday was the loveliest day of the season for an excursion down the river, just warm enough to be pleasant in the cool breezes of the Potomac.

The Fruit Growers had the Corcoran for two trips to Marshall Hall, with Cook's band to discourse sweet music. A beautiful dinner was executed when passing Mr. Vernon on the morning downward trip, while Mr. Drew forth enunciated from all the 600 on board.
Captain Blake, determined not to exceed his complement of passengers, left the wharf on the first morning downward trip, while Mr. Drew forth enunciated from all the 600 on board.
Captain Blake, determined not to exceed his

At the Hall Mr. Thysen entertained the company with an interesting description of the planting of an ice field in the Arctic regions, seen from the Potomac, and of a day and night on the ice. Mr. Murphy, Miss Shannon and Frances Rouch gave recitations. The exhibition of fruits and flowers were quite creditable. The tea and coffee furnished by the association's emporium, Mr. Colton, were delicious and indulged in to a great extent. On the boat Mrs. Irene G. Daniels and her talented daughter, Miss Mary, were the only ladies piano with songs and piano music of a high order. The excursion was altogether the best ever given by this association, for which great importance to every one of its residents.
